PREFACE

This 1986-1987 edition of the NEBRASKA STATISTICAL HANDBOOK, contains a comprehensive collection of data on demographic, social, physical and economic aspects of the State. The data has been gathered from various government (State and Federal) and private sources. The source notes at the end of each table indicate the publication or agency where information was obtained.

For users interested in sources of data on specific subjects, Appendix A, Guide to Data Sources, contains a list of the sources used in each section. Data from sources other than government agencies are subject to copyright restrictions and permission to use this material must be obtained directly from the copyright owner.

In compiling this ninth edition, the tables in the previous edition were carefully reviewed. It was necessary to make some changes because of changes in the available data. Terms used in the tables were taken directly from the sources noted, and definitions not found at the end of the table can be obtained by referring to the original source.

This volume was compiled and prepared by the Research Division of the Nebraska Department of Economic Development. The statistical series included represent those determined to be most useful. Every effort has been made to insure accuracy in the presentation of these data.

Suggestions or comments from the users as to the content or presentation are welcome. Please send any comments to:

AREA & CLIMATE

SECTION A AREA AND CLIMATE

Ranking fifteenth in area out of the fifty states, Nebraska has 76,644 square miles of land and 711 square miles of water. The 93 counties vary in area from the 238 square miles of Sarpy County in the east up to Cherry County's 5,966 square miles in the north central.

The invigorating temperate climate of Nebraska is differentiated from west to east. Normal annual average temperature and precipitation range from 47.6° F and 16.6 inches in the panhandle to 51.9° F and 30.3 inches in the southeast. On average the month of July is the warmest and January the coldest in the state. June and January are respectively on average the wettest and dryest months for the state.

The statistics presented in the following pages cover land area and climate of Nebraska. The U.S. Department of Commerce is the principal source for the data shown.

SECTION B

POPULATION

By 1984, Nebraska's population reached an estimated 1,606,000 persons. This is over 36,000 more than the 1980 total of 1,569,825, or an increase of 2.3 percent during the four-year period. The population growth of the 1970s decade was 5.7 percent, or an increase of 84,492.

Outmigration of the population continues to be a problem. In the period from 1980 to 1984, 16,000 more persons left the state than entered it. This exceeds the 0.8 percent migration rate, or loss of 12,616 persons between 1970 and 1980.

During the decade of the 1970s, the state became increasingly urbanized. Almost 63 percent of the state's population, or approximately 987,500 people, resided in urban communities of 2,500 persons or more in 1980, compared to 1970 when 61.5 percent, or about 913,500 people, lived in urban communities. Over 72 percent of the inhabitants in 1980 lived in the state's 535 incorporated communities, ranging in population from 2 to 313,911.

Average population density in 1980 for Nebraska was 20.5 persons per square mile, but population density varies markedly within the state. Douglas County, containing the city of Omaha, has a population density over 1,190 persons per square mile, while some counties in the western part of the state have less than 2 people per square mile.

The demographic trends occurring nationwide are also apparent in Nebraska, as the median age of the population increased from 27.4 years in 1970 to 29.7 years in 1980. The 65 and over age group composed 13.1 percent of the population in 1980, compared to 12.3 percent of the population ten years earlier. Meanwhile, the 18 and under age group dropped from 34.2 percent of the population in 1970 to 28.5 percent in 1980.

Presented in this section are statistics which review growth, distribution, and characteristics of the Nebraska population. The chief sources of these data are the U.S. Bureau of the Census and the Nebraska Department of Health, Bureau of Vital Statistics.

SECTION C

LABOR FORCE & EMPLOYMENT

SECTION C
LABOR FORCE & EMPLOYMENT

Nebraska's labor force reached an all-time high of 812,000 persons in 1985. Total employment also reached a peak of 768,000. The unemployment rate of 5.4 percent, while up from the previous years' 4.4 percent, was significantly lower than the national figure of 7.1 percent for 1985.

In the last quarter of a century the employment distribution in Nebraska has changed from a heavily agricultural to a more balanced distribution. In 1960, 26 percent of all jobs were on the farm, but by 1985 farm employment accounted for only 9.9 percent of the jobs. In 1985, manufacturing accounted for 13.7 percent of the nonfarm wage and salary employment, while retail trade accounted for 18.3 percent, services for 21.9 percent and government for 20.8 percent.

This section presents statistics dealing with labor force, employment, hours and earnings of manufacturing workers in Nebraska, and the Consumer Price Index. Sources for this information are the Nebraska Department of Labor and the U.S. Department of Labor.

SECTION D

PERSONAL INCOME & STATE PRODUCT

PERSONAL INCOME & STATE PRODUCT

Nebraska's total personal income reached almost $20 billion in 1984, an increase of 358 percent over 1970 and 39 percent over 1980. The largest portion of this total came from the wage and salary sector, which accounted for 53 percent of the total. Property income (dividends, interest and rent) accounted for 11.5 percent, while transfer payments (retirement, social security, unemployment insurance, food stamps, etc.) and proprietors income accounted for 6.2 percent and 5.7 percent respectively.

An indicator of the economic well-being of the population is per capita personal income. In 1984, Nebraska's per capita income was $12,572, an increase of 41.5 percent over the 1980 per capita income. This was slightly below the U.S. per capita income of $12,772, but over the Plains Region* average of $12,532.

Nebraska's gross state product grew 35.1 percent between 1980 and 1984. In this period the sectors with the greatest rate of growth were Farm (121.4 percent), Services (47.9 percent), Finance, Insurance and Real Estate (38.2 percent) and Government (37.5 percent).

The statistical series on personal income in this section provide a basis for evaluating economic progress and for reviewing the changing structure of the Nebraska economy. This information includes published data from the Survey of Current Business and unpublished data provided by the U.S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of Economic Analysis, and the Bureau of Business Research, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

*The Plains Region contains seven states: Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Traditionally agriculture has been the backbone of Nebraska's economy. While the balance has been shifting in the past two decades, agriculture is still a significant part of our economy. In addition to those employed directly in farming and ranching, there are many businesses in other sectors serving agriculture. These include manufacturers who process farm products or produce farm machinery or equipment, wholesalers who deal in farm machinery, retailers selling feed, seed and other necessary supplies, and truckers transporting farm products.

Ranking fourth in land in farms and ranches in the United States and also fourth in cash receipts from farm marketing ($7,082,000,000) in 1984, Nebraska holds an important position in the agricultural economy of the Nation. In 1984 the state ranked first in the production of alfalfa meal and Great Northern beans. It was second in the production of sorghum silage and dry edible beans and in the number of fed cattle and calves marketed. Nebraska ranked third in commercial cattle slaughter and in the production of sorghum grain and corn for grain. Other significant placings in that year were: fifth for all hogs and pigs, sixth in the production of all hay and sugar beets and seventh in winter wheat production.

Livestock accounted for $4,523.0 million in cash receipts, or over 60 percent of the total, while receipts for crops amounted to $2,558.7 million. While cash receipts have increased 234 percent between 1970 and 1984, this was offset by an increase of 250 percent in farm production expenses in this period.

This section presents data on trends in the number and size of farms, the value and use of farm land, on crop and livestock production and on income from farming. Sources for these data are the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and the Nebraska Department of Agriculture.

SECTION F

MANUFACTURING MINING AND BUSINESS

SECTION F
MANUFACTURING, MINING, AND BUSINESS

In changing from an agricultural economy to a more diversified economy, manufacturing has grown in importance in the state. Its growth has fluctuated, however, rather than being steady. Manufacturing employment in Nebraska reached 99,500 in 1979, but declined to 88,900 in 1985. Manufacturers of agricultural machinery especially felt the impact of the farm crisis in the State. The most important manufacturing activity in Nebraska is in food and kindred products, which in 1982 accounted for 35 percent of the value added by manufacturing. This was an increase of 87 percent over the 1977 value added. Other industry groups with significant value added were machinery, electric and electronic equipment, and fabricated metal products.

Exports of manufactured goods from Nebraska totaled $62 million in 1966. By 1976 they had increased to $309 million. In 1982 over $735 million of manufactured goods were exported from the State, a decrease of 22 percent from the high of over $945 million in 1981.

The value of mineral production in Nebraska reached $287.4 million in 1985. Crude petroleum and natural gas accounted for 64 percent of this value, while sand and gravel and crushed stone were the next highest mineral commodities. Overall, the mining industry in Nebraska is small, employing only 1,800 persons in 1985.

Following the national trend, the trade and services sectors in Nebraska have been growing. Employment in all three sectors, wholesale trade, retail trade, and selected services, recorded increases between 1982 and 1985. All also had gains in sales or receipts between the 1977 and 1982 Census years.

The principal sources for the data in this section are the U.S. Bureau of the Census, the U.S. Bureau of Mines, the Nebraska Oil & Gas Conservation Commission, the Nebraska Department of Revenue, and the Nebraska Secretary of State.

Note: Two changes were made in the 1982 Census: (1) Detailed 1982 data is for establishments with payroll only, because the IRS miscoded many establishments without payroll into miscellaneous categories rather than in the specific kind of business and (2) Leased departments are now treated separately from the main store in which they are located. 1977 data presented here reflect these changes.

TRANSPORTATION AND COMMUNICATION

There are almost 96,000 miles of highways in Nebraska. In 1984, 98 percent of the State-maintained highways were paved, compared to 70 percent in 1960. This includes Nebraska's Interstate 80, 481 miles of highway stretching the length of the State and the largest single public investment project ever undertaken in Nebraska.

Nebraska motor vehicle registrations reached 1,440,858 in 1985. This included 831,299 automobiles and 363,467 trucks. Motor vehicle accidents reached a high of 50,802 in 1978, then declined to 42,449 in 1981, and have fluctuated somewhat since then, registering 47,909 accidents in 1985. Fatal accidents in 1985 declined to 207, with 237 deaths, the lowest number in over 35 years.

Five railroad companies provide service in Nebraska, operating over approximately 4,700 miles of main track. These carriers are designated as Class I railroads, receiving more than $1 billion in gross operating revenues in 1983. Between 1965 and 1983, railroad tons carried increased from 60.3 million to 170.2 million, a gain of over 282 percent.

Seventeen daily newspapers cover the State. Many smaller communities are served by weekly, biweekly, or triweekly papers. Television coverage is provided by 14 commercial stations and a network of 9 educational stations, and cable television is available in 105 communities in Nebraska. Radio stations serving Nebraska include 50 AM and 58 FM commercial stations and 12 FM noncommercial stations.

Presented in this section are statistics dealing with the transportation and communications facilities in the state. SECTION I

CONSTRUCTION AND HOUSING

SECTION I
CONSTRUCTION AND HOUSING

The number of building permits authorizing the construction of residential housing totaled 5,001 in 1985. This represented a 13.6 percent decrease from the industry's 1984 performance. This downturn in new residential construction was accompanied by a similar decrease in mortgage lending, which totaled $527 million in 1985--an 11.5 percent decrease from 1984.

In 1980, there were 624,821 housing units in Nebraska, an increase of 109,291 from 1970. The median value of owner-occupied units was $38,000, compared to $12,400 in 1970, and the median rent was $170, compared to $77 in 1970.

Since 1980, it is estimated that an additional 30,590 new housing units have been constructed, and 2,990 older housing units have been demolished, for a net gain of 27,600, leaving an estimated 652,421 housing units in Nebraska as of January 1, 1986. In 1985, the average construction cost of the single family home was $56,528, a 60 percent increase over the average construction cost in 1980 of $35,332. The average selling price of a single family home increased 35 percent to $47,132 in 1984 from $34,656 in 1978, according to figures supplied by the Nebraska Department of Revenue.

Of the approximately 391,000 owner-occupied units in the state in 1980, 68 percent were in the urban areas. Rural areas accounted for over 60 percent of the owner-occupied homes valued under $10,000, while 80 percent of the homes valued at $50,000 or more were in the urban areas.

The U.S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census is the source of the data presented in this section. Information about housing in Nebraska was obtained from the 1980 Census of Housing, and data on construction activity was obtained from the Census Bureau publications, Statistical Abstract of the United States and Construction Reports, Series C40. Mortgage lending data came from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

EDUCATION

SECTION J
EDUCATION

Enrollment in Nebraska's public schools steadily declined since the peak year of 1970-1971 until 1985-1986, when enrollment of 266,298 marked an increase of .07 percent over the previous year. The increase occurred in the elementary grades, as enrollment in the secondary schools continued to decline. The pupil-teacher ratio has declined to 12.86 students per teacher in 1985 (compared to 21.59 students in 1965-1966), while the average cost has soared to $3,260.12 per student in 1985 (compared to $411.13 in 1965-1966).

A network of public and private institutions make post-secondary education available throughout the State. The University of Nebraska has campuses in Lincoln and Omaha and a satellite campus at Curtis. There are also four State colleges, sixteen technical community college campuses, and fifteen private colleges and universities. Total enrollment in these institutions increased 4.5 percent between 1981 and 1985. The greatest increase, 24.3 percent, occurred in state college enrollment. Community colleges grew by 10.4 percent, the private colleges and universities by less than one percent, while enrollment at the University of Nebraska decreased 3.1 percent.

Statistics in this section were provided by the Nebraska Department of Education, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and the Nebraska Coordinating Commission for Postsecondary Education.

SECTION K

HEALTH & WELFARE

SECTION K
HEALTH AND WELFARE

In 1986 there were 112 licensed hospitals in Nebraska with 12,116 beds. These hospitals are located in 71 of the State's 93 counties. Those counties without hospitals tend to be sparsely populated: seven have populations of less than 1,000, and an additional five have less than 2,000 residents.

The leading cause of death in Nebraska continues to be heart disease. It caused almost twice the number of deaths as cancer, the second leading cause. Together, heart disease and cancer caused over 59 percent of all deaths in the State during 1984.

Since 1970, welfare expenditures by Federal, state, and county governments have increased from $55 million to over $313 million in 1985. The 1985 total represents a 47 percent increase over 1980 expenditures and a 463 percent increase over 1970 costs. Maintenance payments are made to four special groups--the aged, the blind, the disabled, and dependent children. Medical assistance is also provided for these groups and for others who do not receive maintenance payments.

The statistics included in this section present information about hospital facilities in the state, leading causes of death, and the state's public assistance programs. The sources of these data are the Nebraska Department of Health and the Nebraska Department of Social Services.

SECTION L

GOVERNMENT

In 1984, the general revenue available to the State of Nebraska totaled $1.92 billion. Education represented the largest expenditure item for both State and local budgets, totaling 18.7 percent of State government spending in 1984, followed by public welfare expenditures, which amounted to 15 percent of state spending.

The largest source of State government general revenue is the sales and gross receipts tax, which yielded $596.5 million, or 31 percent of the total for 1984. Individual income tax, the second largest source of tax revenue, accounted for $304 million in revenues or 15.8 percent of the total. Per capita revenue collected by State government in Nebraska in 1984 was $665.47, which was 80 percent of the $835.32 average for all fifty states.

Local government subdivisions are most dependent on property taxes. In Fiscal Year 1984, $811.6 million or 52.4 percent of all local revenues came from this source.

Statistics in this section present information describing revenues and expenditures of State government, county totals for property and income taxes paid, and voter registration in the state and its counties. The chief sources of these data are the U.S. Bureau of the Census, the Office of the Nebraska Secretary of State, and the Nebraska Department of Revenue.

SECTION M

RECREATION & TOURISM

RECREATION AND TOURISM

Nebraska recreation and tourism grew rapidly for most of the 1970s and during the first half of the 1980s, reflecting increases in population, leisure time, educational levels, automobile ownership, and disposable personal income. This growth was channeled into a number of activities, including visits to Nebraska park and recreation areas, historic facilities, and other attractions in the state.

In 1985, over 1.3 billion dollars was spent in Nebraska by visitors to the state as well as by residents on trips to places 100 miles or more from home. This spending accounted for the equivalent of 35,000 full-time jobs, making the Nebraska travel industry the state's third largest economic sector, following agriculture and manufacturing.

The growth of recreation and tourism is perhaps most evident in the increased use of Nebraska parks, historic sites, museums, and other attractions. Among the foremost of these attractions are the park and recreation areas of the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, which together hosted well over 8.5 million visitors during 1985. These areas enable a variety of outdoor recreation activities, including sightseeing, picnicking, camping, swimming, boating, and fishing.

In this section, a listing is presented of Nebraska parks, recreation areas, and other attractions, including attendance figures for selected facilities. Also presented are data on outdoor recreation participation by Nebraskans as well as such indicators of Nebraska tourism as the origins and destinations of nonresident visitors to the State and a breakdown of their expenditures while in Nebraska.

SECTION N

Energy consumption in Nebraska totaled 497.6 trillion Btu's during 1985. Petroleum accounted for the greatest usage--37 percent of the total, while natural gas ranked second with 27 percent of the state's energy consumption. Electric utilities used 35 percent of the energy, while the transportation sector accounted for almost 28 percent.

Since 1970, consumption of several types of energy has increased substantially. The consumption of coal, mostly to generate electricity, increased over 537 percent between 1970 and 1984, and nuclear power, with the construction of two generating plants during the 1970s, accounted for almost one-third of the electricity generated in Nebraska in 1984. On the other hand, natural gas consumption declined by almost 40 percent from 1970 to 1984, while hydroelectric generation was 2 percent less than in 1970. The consumption of petroleum rose through the 1970s, and peaked in 1978, declining afterwards with some fluctuations.

Nebraska is the only state where all electric utilities are publicly owned and operated. Costs to Nebraska's electrical consumers have been among the lowest in the entire United States. From 1970 to 1984, electric utility sales in Nebraska increased 79 percent, and generating capacity grew by 195 percent. Conventional steam sources, primarily coal, currently account for more than half of the state's electrical generating capacity.

Presented in this section are statistics dealing with energy generated and consumed in Nebraska. Data have been obtained largely from the Nebraska Energy Office, the U.S. Department of Energy, the American Gas Association, and the Edison Electric Institute.
